

Practice What You Preach: Open Letter to lululemon

To Glenn K. Murphy, Chairman of the Board, lululemon
Dear Mr. Murphy,

As yoga teachers, we ask lululemon to commit to phase out coal and source 100 percent renewable energy across its supply chain.

lululemon is one of the largest, fastest growing and most profitable fitness apparel brands in the world.

lululemon's marketing claims its clothes are 'designed by yogis' and offers connection to a global community of mindfulness practitioners, sporting leaders and health and wellness professionals.

Yet almost half of the energy powering lululemon factories comes from burning coal.

lululemon's reliance on coal as a source of energy is extremely harmful to people and the environment, particularly in countries like Vietnam, Cambodia, China, Sri Lanka, and Bangladesh, where its products are made.

Fossil fuels like coal cause dangerous climate change and air pollution that is responsible for the deaths of millions of people around the world each year. Nearly one in five premature deaths globally are attributed to air pollution that's caused by fossil fuels, according to a 2018 Harvard study.

lululemon's current climate commitments fail to adequately address its pollution. In fact, its total GHG emissions are increasing due to the company's rapid growth. In order for the company to meet the Paris agreement targets, lululemon has to take immediate action to phase out coal and other fossil fuels from its supply chain.

lululemon: Please commit to immediately phase out coal and source 100 percent renewable energy such as solar and wind for your factories and across your supply chain.
